

Congresswoman Slaughter was one of the chief opponents of the bill that repealed Occupational Safety and Health Administration's (OSHA) ergonomics standard in 2001. Additionally, Congresswoman Slaughter voted against slashing the workplace safety and health budget.